WHAT 'LIVE' CAN LEARN FROM LEGACY

While sometimes seen as a backwater or poor relation of the 'live' re/insurance market, the run-off sector has developed a wealth of experience that could equally bring value to the active market. In this special issue we consider just what the 'live' market can learn from the legacy sector.

In what areas does legacy demonstrate superior results? How much scope is there for legacy professionals to apply their skills elsewhere in the market? Does run-off offer a rewarding career path for the younger entrant? Is it a dead end or is there a way back – a life after run-off?
